2. Scholarships will be awarded over two semesters (fall and spring) unless otherwise stated.
3. Utilize the Prince George’s Community College Writing Center to help prepare your scholarship essay or see the tips provided in the “Scholarship Essay Writing: Secrets of Success” on page 3.

If Awarded a Scholarship…
Prince George’s Community College scholarships are made possible through the generosity of donations from several individuals and organizations. Therefore, each recipient must produce a “thank you” letter to their respective donor. Funds will not be made available until this important step has been completed. Failure to comply may render the applicant ineligible to receive scholarship awards for the current semester. Recipients may also be asked to attend a donor appreciation event, and provide community service hours.

Plan Your Essay Carefully
Start out with a sound plan for your essay. Be sure you've done all your prewriting before you start to write.

State Your Thesis
Yes, like any essay, a scholarship essay has a thesis! State that you are writing to apply for the scholarship (state the name of the scholarship). Unlike most essays, this one does not need an entire introductory paragraph—remember, you only have 200–300 words.

Organize
There are four sections to an essay: the introductory sentences, two supporting body paragraphs and the concluding paragraph.
1. In the first supporting body paragraph, explain why you should be selected as a recipient of the scholarship you are seeking.
2. In the second supporting body paragraph, explain what you expect to achieve in terms of your professional and/or educational goals at Prince George's Community College.

Support
Each of these paragraphs will include:
1. A topic sentence that shows the point of the paragraph.
2. Details that support the point.

Be Specific!
In both of your supporting paragraphs, use specific details that illustrate to the reader who you are and what makes you special as a candidate. Don’t make general statements such as, “I plan to use my college education to get a good job.” Instead, state specifics, “I plan to use my concentration in pre-law to become a corporate litigator for a Fortune-500 company.” Show that you have done your research, both about your academic concentration at Prince George’s Community College and about your future plans.

Concluding Paragraph
Sum up the point of your essay in one sentence and thank the reader for his/her attention.

Be Human!
Come across as the interesting, unique individual that you are! If you’ve had any distinguishing circumstances in your life—for example, if you have come from another country, have had hardships growing up or have been particularly inspired by people or events in your life—don’t be afraid to mention them.

Edit Your Essay Carefully!
Be sure that your essay is meticulously edited: It should be clear, concise, detailed, grammatical, free of typographical errors and interesting.
