If Awarded a Scholarship...

Prince George's Community College scholarships are made possible through the generosity of donations from several individuals and organizations. Therefore, each recipient must produce a thank you note to their respective donor. Failure to comply may render the applicant ineligible to receive scholarship awards for the current semester.

Recipients may also be asked to participate in a donor appreciation event and provide community service hours to the college.

Writing Center Information (<https://pgcc.libguides.com/twc/>)

Many scholarships require an essay. The Writing Center offers tutoring for all students who are working on any writing assignment in any course. Faculty tutors work with students one-on-one on all phases of the writing process.

Tutors help students generate ideas, develop and support thesis statements, organize material, integrate and document sources, and refine sentences. In addition, grammar specialists are available to address grammar and style issues at the sentence level. Currently, tutoring is provided online and in-person. Please check the website for updated times and availability.
